Course Description

This intensive training course was developed in response to the tragic deaths of many firefighters across the nation in the past several years. Many of those who perished did so because they could not get out of the fire building or area where they were working. We train our firefighters in confined space, hazardous materials, infectious disease control, and the incident command but until now there was no training course that teaches firefighters how to save their own lives. The Firefighter Survival and Rescue courses are designed to fill this void by reviewing conditions and situations which may pose a risk to firefighters and by teaching firefighters how to help themselves in emergency conditions.

Prerequisites: FRS 1024 or Consent

Corequisite:

Task List

1.	The firefighter will be able to describe three situations that lead to entrapment/disorientation.
2.	The firefighter will list five items that will increase safety during a fire attack operation.
3.	The firefighter will demonstrate the techniques necessary to accomplish self-rescue.
4.	The firefighter will be able to verbalize procedures for a response to a "Mayday" communication.
5.	The RIT will be able to demonstrate the rescue of a trapped firefighter using the seven job sheets as defined by the program.
